Step 1. Check your balance

Checking your balance online is a quick and easy way to stay on top of how your super is performing, review your transactions and know how you're progressing towards your savings goals.

Step 2. Bring your super together

Put all your super in one place. Here are just a few benefits to consolidating your super:

Fewer fees

Changed jobs at some point in your career? You could have more than one super account, which means you could be paying multiple fees.

Simplify your super

Combining your super makes keeping track of your account balance and insurances simple.

Manage money easier

When your super is in one place, it's easier to manage and you may have more money when you stop working.

Before you make the decision to combine your super accounts into one, consider if it is right for you and weigh up the pros and cons, such as fees and insurance benefits. If you're unsure, seek financial advice.

Step 3. Try a calculator and see how your super is tracking

Wondering if you'll have enough super when you're ready to stop working? Have your balance handy and use a calculator to see how much you may have in retirement and how long it could last.

Step 4. Strategies to grow your super

Your employer may already be contributing to your super account. But making additional contributions can be a quick and effective way to top up your super. Even small yet consistent extra contributions could make a difference down the track. Here are a couple of options for making additional contributions to your super:

Salary sacrifice

You may be able to use your pre-tax salary to make additional contributions to your super fund.

Devan is 45 and recently had a pay rise of $5,000 – taking his total salary to $100,000 per year. He’s planning on retiring in 20 years, so he decides to use his $5,000 pay rise to make a pre-tax contribution to his super. By adding $5,000 to super, it will be taxed at 15% ($750) rather than his marginal tax rate of 32%¹ ($1,600). This means that he will contribute an extra $975 to his super, for a total of $4,250.

Voluntary contributions

Adding to your super account by contributing a little more from your take-home pay can be a great way of growing your savings.

Jamie is 50 years old and has $50,000 of savings which she would like to invest for her retirement. If Jamie contributes this money into super, any earnings will be taxed at only 15% in her super fund rather than a maximum of 47% (including Medicare levy) with other types of investments. By paying less tax Jamie can save more money toward her retirement goals.

There is a limit on the amount of contributions you can make each year to your super without paying extra tax.

Step 5. Check how your super is invested

When was the last time you looked at how your super is invested? Choosing the right options at the right time could make your money work harder for you, and it’s simple to check online or using our app.

Step 6. Update your beneficiaries

Leaving your money in the right hands is an important matter that's often overlooked. By nominating a beneficiary, you're helping to ensure where your super will go when you're no longer here. Learn more or log in to update your beneficiaries.

Already nominated a beneficiary?

Your circumstances or the important people in your life may have changed. So, it's good practice to review your beneficiary nomination, at least every year, to make sure it still reflects your situation today. If you need to, you can make a new beneficiary nomination online in ANZ Smart Choice Super.

Step 7. Check your insurance in super

No matter where you are in life, insurance is an important part of protecting you, your family and your super. When you're insured through ANZ Smart Choice Super you get:

Tax-effective insurance fees (premiums)

Your insurance premiums come directly from your super balance, so you won't see a difference in your take-home pay.

Competitive premiums

We can negotiate group discounts to get you better prices on your premiums, although you should be aware that premiums can reduce your retirement savings.

Are you covered

You may be eligible for insurance cover right away, so there's no need for medical tests or to provide medical records. You also have the choice to select a cover amount that's right for you. You can use our insurance needs calculator to see whether you have enough cover or what amount is right for you.
